Superheroes of the 2020 Pandemic

The coronavirus is really testing our world. It has had far-reaching consequences beyond the spread of the disease and efforts to contain it. From disruption to factories and logistics to massive losses in many industries, our everyday lives have already been severely challenged.

However, doctors, retail workers, and many, many more people are working very hard to help each and every one of us during these difficult times. And they should get all the recognition they deserve. So, to honor their efforts, I'm passing along comics created by artist Dustin Rogers. The strip strikes a perfect balance between humor and compassion.
