DAILY DEVOTIONAL FROM PASTOR SELL

Tuesday, June 15

Over Memorial Day weekend, I dug out the path by the pond. The gardens had not been fully tended for a few years prior to my purchase so there are things that need to be done. One of those must do's was digging out the path overgrown with weeds and very tenacious grasses. As I dug, I discovered the path was marked with beautiful dark grey square stones among the weathered natural rocks. It was like uncovering an almost lost forgotten treasure. I still have a bit more digging to do and then I can reset some of the stones to make the path a little easier to walk. I look out over the garden and realize the path enhances the architecture and beauty of the landscaping.

Bible study can be work. The language is sometimes old fashioned and confusing. The agricultural and social images can be foreign but if we invest some time, we just might find a nugget of wisdom or have an ah hah moment that can change our lives.
