DAILY DEVOTIONAL FROM PASTOR SELL

Tuesday, June 8

I was relaxing on the porch of my daughter's house recently while dog/house sitting. A little brown bird landed in the grass by the shed. It began to fly and hit the side wall of the shed. Again, and again, it flew up and hit the wall. If it had just turned around and flown in the opposite direction, there would have been a clear flight path. The bird hit the wall at least 15 times before it changed its direction and flew off. What a headache it must have had.

I feel like that sometimes – just beating my head against a wall trying to resolve a problem. I am sure you have too. Sometimes we just don't realize or want to admit there is a Plan B or C or even D. We just keep repeating the same thing. It is then we need to follow Jesus' example and take a break.
