Easter 2021

Devotionals from Pastor Sell

Tuesday, May 11

For the last few weeks, one or two brown rabbits have visited the gardens every night between 5 and 6 pm. At first, I was irritated thinking they were going to munch on my flowers. Then I watched more closely. They were eating dandelions! As I continued to observe them, they not only ate the dandelions, but fleshy weeds were also on their list of menu favorites. I had lots of weeds, so maybe the rabbits were not a nuisance after all. Now, do not get me wrong – two rabbits are fine; a dozen would call for real action on my part.

There are many things in life which irritate, annoy, or just plain drive us crazy. They can distract us from our activities and make our thinking fuzzy. Sometimes those distractions are not what we think they are. They may be more valuable than we imagine. If, however, we keep our eyes on the master creator, we may see things from a different perspective.
