DAILY DEVOTIONAL FROM PASTOR SELL

Tuesday, May 25

I stood outside Zion one Sunday after church and listened to a cardinal on the wires across the street. It would sing for maybe 5 seconds and wait for a response. The response came from not just one other bird but from several in the nearby area. The responses were all different in pitch, rhythm, and tone. I do not know if they were all cardinals or several other birds. It went on for several minutes.

I was reminded of the events of Pentecost where people from all over the Middle East could hear the disciples proclaim the Gospel in their own languages. In worship the word of God is proclaimed in many ways – spoken word, written word, music, the art that surrounds us, bread and wine, and the other people who are present to sing God’s praises. How great is our God who comes to us in many ways?
