DAILY DEVOTIONAL FROM PASTOR SELL

November 8

I have driven passed it hundreds, thousands of times as I drive between Landisville and Mount Joy. You need to look closely it see the small white stone with numbers and letters. I assume this ancient road marker indicates 17 miles from Mount Joy to Manheim and 8 miles to Lancaster. Markers like this are found all over eastern Pennsylvania. For hundreds of years mile markers guided people toward their destination. Long before paper maps and GPS, mile markers were a hope-sign throughout a journey.

The Christian life has mile markers too: Baptism, confirmation, marriage, communion, funerals. They are markers which remind us of the love of God in midst of life's milestones and changes. These milestones are important. They give us goals for the future and comfort throughout our lives.
